What's New in the?

Browsing the web is becoming increasingly faster. Thanks to the invention of new technologies, such as the mobile internet and the latest smartphones, web browsing and application installation have become a real pleasure. However, one thing that has not changed is the fact that to read a website or a newspaper article you need to download it first and read it later. But even if this seems like a necessary step to the inexperienced eye, it can slow you down considerably. The Sprint Reader solves this issue by enabling you to read web content as you browse. Once you find an article or a website that interests you, you can pause the reading process and select the text you want to read. Then, you can either switch to another website, and continue reading there, or you can save the content for later reading. The extension offers different options to suit your needs. For example, you can adjust the focus rate of the words displayed on the website or you can set the reading speed to a certain WPM. In addition, you can choose from two different modes: 1) The system will focus on each word every 1-2 seconds and analyze the text you are reading. 2) The system will focus on each word every 5-10 seconds and analyze the text you are reading. How does it work? After you selected the text and opened the extension, each word is shown in a fixed focal position. This means that you do not linger on each word any more, and thus you can read much faster.

more time to linger on each word, thus it takes longer to read each sentence.

However, when reading text from right to left, you have to pause to load words from right to left. The extension also offers the possibility to save the content for later reading, so you do not need to download the website or article when you want to read it later. It is important to point out that the extension is not compatible with any mobile application.

Key features 1) Read web content as you browse. 2) Pause the reading process to select the text you want to read. 3) Save the content for later reading. 4) Adjust the focus rate of the words displayed on the website. 5) Choose from the system's two reading modes (every 1-2 seconds and every 5-10 seconds). 6) Choose the number of words per minute. 7) Choose the number of words per slide. 8) Choose the number of seconds between each slide. 9) Choose the font size. 10) Choose the text color. 11) Choose the text orientation. 12) Choose between the default or right-to-left reading. 13) Choose the delay after a period, comma or paragraph. 14
